

“Millennials at Work: Young and Callow, Like Their Parents”

Link to text below

http://www.nytimes.com/2014/03/25/your-money/millennials-at-work-young-and-callow-like-their-parents.html?ref=education&_r=0

Vocabulary

Match the vocabulary on the left with their meanings on the right.

To be consistent	To quickly return to a previous good condition
To lack	Loyal, willing to give time and energy
To be undependable	To behave or happen in a similar way
To be committed	Something that shows something to be true
The evidence	To not have enough of something
A slacker	Not to be trusted or relied upon.
To be entrepreneurial	Someone who does not work hard
The resilience	Ability to see business opportunities that exist

Questions

True or False; read the following statements and, based on the text decide if they are true or false.

1. A majority of employers feel that young people are not prepared for entering the workforce.
2. Questionnaires of industry decision makers are generally negative in their perceptions of people in their mid to low twenties.
3. Complaining about work is nothing new; apprentices complain about their bosses in the bible.
4. Adam Tratt was frequently called a slacker because he went to college.
5. The ability to concentrate on one task for a long period as well as multitasking is both skills that young people have today Mr. Boggs believes.
6. Some young people have a negative view of their own generation, considering themselves lazy.
7. Mr. Zukin feels that young people experience a shock when they enter the workforce for the first time.