

“Tablets in the Workplace: a Corner Office Perk”

Link to text below

<http://bits.blogs.nytimes.com/2014/07/03/tablets-in-the-workplace-a-corner-office-perk/?ref=technology>

Vocabulary

Match the vocabulary on the left with their meanings on the right.

To conduct	To be attractive or exciting
A perk	A difference between two things
The disparity	To organize and carry out an activity
The consumption	Object or machine for a particular use
A device	An extra payment or benefit from your job
To be alluring	Put something into use in an effective way
To be tantalizing	The use of something, fuel or food for example
The deployment	To be excited about something you can't have

Questions

True or False; read the following statements and, based on the text decide if they are true or false.

1. The survey shows that this year, director level employees and higher are four times more likely to use a tablet for work.
2. The survey asked a wide range of employees, at many levels of the hierarchy, about their use of tablets.
3. Just under half of all director level employees use tablets while on the job.
4. The study made it quite clear that low level workers are clearly doing more work than directors.
5. It is estimated that in another 3 years. 20% of all tablets will be used by business.
6. The study may in fact show that having a tablet is more about showing status than productivity.
7. There are more Apple iPads being used in boardrooms than any other tablet on the market.